A. FACTUAL BASIS OF DEFNESES -26(a)(1)(A)

Defendant denies the allegations in the Complaint. Response to this disclosure may be supplemented as becomes necessary. Subject to the present status of discovery and investigation herein, defendant makes the following initial disclosures. Defendant reserves the right to supplement or change its disclosures as additional information is discovered, and as otherwise in accordance with the Civil Rules and the Court's pretrial schedule.

Affirmative Defense No. 1: Plaintiff may have failed to state a claim for which relief can be granted. There is no contractual privity between plaintiff and defendant. The Complaint does not allege or identify any duty owed by defendant to plaintiff. The Complaint provides no facts on how defendant's conduct caused plaintiff's alleged damages. Discovery has only just begun and all records have not yet been obtained. Supplementation or withdrawal of this defense may occur depending on the facts developed during discovery.

Affirmative Defense No. 2: Plaintiff may have failed in whole or in part to mitigate, minimize, or avoid the damages allegedly sustained, and any recovery must be reduced by that amount. The affirmative defense has been pled in the Answer in order to preserve the affirmative defense. Discovery has just begun and all records have not yet been obtained. Supplementation or withdrawal of this defense may occur depending on the facts developed during discovery.

Affirmative Defense No. 3: Defendant asserts all defenses stated in Rule 12(b). The affirmative defense has been pled in the Answer in order to preserve the affirmative defense. Discovery has just begun and all records have not yet been obtained.

Supplementation or withdrawal of this defense may occur depending on the facts developed during discovery.

Affirmative Defense No. 4: Plaintiff's damages, if any, may have been proximately caused in whole or in part by the actions and/or negligence of the Plaintiff. Plaintiff's recovery, if any, should be reduced in proportion to the percentage of Plaintiff's and/or other third parties' fault. The affirmative defense has been pled in the Answer in order to preserve the affirmative defense. Discovery has just begun and all records have not yet been obtained. Supplementation or withdrawal of this defense may occur depending on the facts developed during discovery.

Affirmative Defense No. 5: Plaintiff's recovery should be reduced by the comparative fault of persons other than defendant. The affirmative defense has been pled in the Answer in order to preserve the affirmative defense. Discovery has just begun and all records have not yet been obtained. Supplementation or withdrawal of this defense may occur depending on the facts developed during discovery.

Affirmative Defense No. 6: Plaintiff's claims may be barred by waiver, estoppel, and/or unclean hands. Plaintiff had an engineering consultant who monitored and approved some of defendant and its subcontractor's work.
